TIMELY TOPICS

WHO IS TO BLAME?

On Tuesday night last, just as the north-bound train was steaming into Strathcona, or, to be more exact, South Edmonton, it ran into the body of a man who apparently slipped upon the track, mutilating the upper part of his body and his head beyond recognition. It was discovered by papers found upon him that he haled from Red Deer. Erd the engineer could pull up the train it had pulled ahead half-a-mile. The body as hastily as possible was passed into the baggage car, and the train slowly steamed into the depot. A broken whisky bottle found upon the victim no doubt told the tale.

WEAR AND TEAR

The man on the farm sometimes tries to persuade himself that his labor is too monotonous and that he will hie away to some prosperous city where he can get into the swirling business and quit hard slogging work. He little thinks that whereas his bodily toil brings bodily weariness alone and that a few hours sleep will put that to rights again, whereas the city man in the midst of that wild expenditure energies of nerve and mind as well as body, and he finds presently that these losses are not easily recruited. Indeed, does he not sigh for the farm, the green fields, the smell, the wholesome enervating appetite giving smell of the soil? And does he not when those nerves of his are shattered, and when his mind becomes weak, hark away back to the green fields, the country cottage? Its quietness, its natural restorative powers act upon him better than medicine, for he gets back to nature, and as a rule when man does that he finds nature is the best doctor. So we hear the words, "Back to the land," "Back to the old farm." "God made the country, man makes the cities," and so on. Yes, the wear and tear of city life heaps it toll upon human life. Fret not, brother of the farm, the fields. You are blessed more than many of yourfellows, for life is more than meat, or wealth either.

DO YOUR BEST.

Some men live long in a short space of time. They make such good use of their days that they do things while others dream them. The man of quiet steady purposeful action often accomplishes more than the fellow with the high sounding voice with all his braggadocio.

Wilbur Wright the king of the air, was one of these men. He has passed on to his reward, but he lived a great life in a few years. We would wish for all men to spend fully their energies thus, it would be folly if we did, for all men are not shaped alike. But how good it is to feel that a man has lived for something that was worth while. No doubt the business of even higher purpose, that of making the air his servant, to convey his messages, to save life. Then look at Edison, the wizard, ever slogging, ever thinking, ever discovering, and passing on to posterity the results of his discoveries. What lesson can we learn from these men? Shall we envy them? Oh, no. Let us learn to do with our might whatever our hand findeth to do. Let us do our best; it may be that something great will come of our thus doing.

Farm Labor Problem

H. G. Macdonald, director of colonization for the province of Ontario, has some excellent suggestions to offer the farmers in his province to aid them in the farm labor problem. Realizing that one of the most urgent needs of the farmers of our province is an adequate supply of farm labor, the colonization branch has been endeavoring to meet that demand by bringing men from Great Britain and Ireland placing them with farmers in Ontario. During the past few years several thousands have been brought and placed in this way. Instead, however, of the demand lessening, it seems to be increasing. Observation and experience convinces us that while there may be many thousand explanations of this regrettable fact, the one outstanding reason is the practice of employing men for six or eight months in the year, and then turning them out to find situations elsewhere for the balance of their time. This works out in such a way that the men who have been employed on the farm now seem to gravitate to towns and cities in the winter months and remain there, with the result that the farmer is compelled to start all over again the next spring in his efforts to secure help.

Having regard to these facts, Mr. Macdonald makes the following suggestions, which he believes will go a long way toward relieving the stridency which exists at the present time:

1. First and foremost, arrange to employ a man by the year. We have found that the farmer who employs his help by the year, especially if he is able to supply a house and a small piece of land, is the farmer who has the least trouble over the problem. If you feel your work does not warrant the employment of a man the year round, you might be well advised to consider the question of taking up a few more branches of farm work or handling additional live stock, and in this way we feel satisfied that you would more than make up for the extra cost of help.

2. Do not be too exacting about getting an experienced man. Experience farm laborers are rare at the present time, as there is a great demand for them in the Old Country as well as on this side. If you take an inexperienced man recognizing that he is unfamiliar with the conditions and methods in this country, and devote a little attention to training him for a month, you will find, in nine cases out of ten, that he will prove very useful to you. Being reasonably generous in the matter of treatment and wages is essential if hired help is to be obtained

Insist upon the washerwoman sprinkling the clothes with hot water. They will iron more easily and have a smoother finish.

NEW STRENGTH IN THE SPRING

Nature Needs Aid in Making New Health-Giving Blood.

In the spring the system needs a tonic. To be healthy you must have new blood just as the trees must have new leaves. You may have twinges of rheumatism or the sharp stabbing pains of neuritis. Other complaints are eruptions on the skin. In other cases there is merely a feeling of tiredness and weariness. Any of these are signs that the blood is out of order and that the body is not getting the blood it needs to keep you looking young, vital, and strong. What you need in spring is a tonic medicine to put you right and nothing is more effective than the new tonic we can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These blood-giver's greatest need is spring. This new blood drives out the sedentary, sluggish, dead blood of men, women, and children bright, active, and strong. Mrs. Murray Marlowe believe I would every have been well and strong again but for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. To my surprise I soon noticed my appetite improved rapidly until I was enjoying the best of health and I have not been sick since. No colds, no rheumatisms or nervousness since.

These pills are sold by all druggists at $2.50 a box. Send 25 cents and get a free box. A doctor will prescribe a full course of treatment.

A Careful Diet.

Sir Richard Jebb, the eminent physician, was a man of irrevocable temperament and born with the natural complaints of some of his patients could not always force himself to return a clear answer. A troublesome patient whose illness was purely imaginary pestered him one day with questions as to what he should eat.

"Willie, why don't you let your life brother have your next part of the bill, ma. I take it down hill and he has it going back?" Both on transients.

Muscular Ressurection Subduced.—When one is a sufferer from muscular rheumatism, he will be better than to have the regular rubbing with oil and liniment. Oil and liniment has no oil that so speedily shows its effect in subduing pain. Let the rubbers be applied to the limb until the heat is secured. There is more virtue in a bottle of this than can be fully estimated.

Bad Outlook.

"No, I can't get up enough courage to see my doctor for my daughter."

"And why not?"

"Because I'm a builder of absolute fireproof buildings and he is a fire insurance agent."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Pill for All Seasons.—Under and over exposure, whether in the torrid zone or Arctic temperature, Parmelee's Vegetable Pill can be depended upon to do its work. The experts will find them a good aid when they should carry them with a view to keep their freshness and to do not grow stale, a quality not possessed in many pills now on the market.

Till the year 1831 all coils imported into the Thames, instead of being sold by weight, were sold by measure.

Prisoned Accidents.
Eighteen months imprisonment, with hard labor, was the sentence recently given to a man in London, Ontario, for having caused three men to be killed through the negligence of the persons whom he made his victims. Had the man been a felon, his crime would never have been detected. His deception was favored by a malformed wrist, which made it difficult for him to hold a gun. A confederate accompanied him, making notes of each accident, which was to be obtained. Some years ago he had been imprisoned for a month after falling through an open grating in a sidewalk and breaking an arm. On his release he had gone to previous to his coming here he had broken the same arm and had been sent to prison again. He was in the cage, where he again met with an accident. He was then discovered to be a fraud and was punished.

Our Country Tour For Boy Scouts

Principally our English-speaking United States boys during the summer months are being made by Colin N. Livingston, of the Boy Scouts of America, to travel.

It is proposed to send the boys over accompanied by competent Scout Physicians, as soon as the schools close. The expenses will be drawn from all parts of the country, and the money raised will make the trip a steamer will be chartered.

The boy scouts also contemplated a trip to the United States by British boys on the same steamer. Mr. Livingston is doing this work under the undertaking by the marked success of the recent tour of Australian Boy Scouts.

Caries in Mice.

The use of the caries as a warning of the existence of foul air in a mine has long been familiar in this country, but it was not until after the collapse of the dinner, whenupon the proprietor said:—

"I am a man of American. In elegance, as in wealth, we stand to-day. We have passed that stage when a child should whisper to its mother, 'I am not afraid to die.'"

"I am a man of French. In elegance, as in wealth, we stand to-day. We have passed that stage when the tailor was obliged to wait to be paid, whenupon the proprietor said:—

"I am a man of England. In elegance, as in wealth, we stand to-day. When we have paid the bill, we drop the latter turned back. It was never heard that the air was unfit for them to breathe."

A Pill For Brain Workers.—The man who works with his brain is more liable to derangement of the mind than the elephant, the dog, the bull; but it would seem a thankless task to advise a man to take a pill to climb out of it. Thinking, after a time, that there might be something wrong with his head, he replaced unmercifully, by red, the replaced the white, and the white, and the white, always with the same result after the ants had made a few excursions over the surface of the skin. Then, he tried plain cloth, and even paper, but the result was invariably the same. Finally, he took off his shirt, and the ants refused to climb the shirt when there was any sort of a "slip," and the shirt was visible, and after infinite number of trials, he accommodated themselves to his superior power.

Dr. Johnson's Sunday.

Dr. Johnson—The most genuine Justice of the Peace in the eighteenth century—may be claimed as a supporter of the cheerful Sunbird, who is fond of bird-watching and bird-catching at Streatham on the Thames. He said:—"While a Christian man may be allowed to sing and celebrate Sunday as a day of festivity, how comes your puritanical and hypocritical friends to excommunicate from exactness?" Johnson held, however, that the Sunbird did not sing, "People may walk, but not throw stones at birds." There may be reason in this, but there could be no levity.

Oh, you Sunny Southern Alberta in the Cayley district!

Did you ever see such an ideal spring, or the crops looking better anywhere you have ever been than they do just now, in the Cayley district?

The fire bye-elections held last Monday—all went in favor of the Sifton government. McKenzie in Claresholm had a narrow squeak—but he got there.

85% of headaches is the result of eyestrain. If you are troubled that way consult S. L. Faube, eye sight specialist at Cayley drug store, Friday next, June 7th.

The Claresholm Review, in referring to that town's football team's visit on May 24th, says: "The boys all came home safely and said Cayley was the place to have good time."

Don't be one of the farmers who put the little things off till tomorrow. There is no gain, while the loss at the end of the year would be pure bred hogs or a short horn bull.

The change in the C.P.R. summer time table, which came into force after midnight last Sunday, is not so alarming as was at first reported on the C. and E. branch, the only change being that the train going north in the evening will now start twenty-five minutes earlier from Cayley. The Sunday trains are the same.

Sometime during Friday night the Stavely post office was broken into. Things inside were mostly resembled the aftermath of a cyclone. The registered letters were missing and, two-thirds of the night mail from the north, besides all the mail from the Little Bow; also some stamps, the value of which is not yet known. The safe was left intact. The work seems that of an amateur. No clue has yet been found as to who the perpetrator was.

Somebody has suggested the idea of painting the lower cellar step white if your cellar is dark, thereby preventing mishaps and also doing away with feeling for the last step as you go down.

If the house is infested with ants, dip a sponge into sweetened water and lay it where they can get at it. They will soon cluster upon it and the sponge will be dipped in hot water.

Old hair-brushes which have become soft can be made quite hard and firm by dipping them in a strong solution of alum. Put a little alum in some hot water. Five cents' worth of alum will last for months.

Butmilk is the best thing to clean linoleum and oilcloth. Just mop it up with a soft cloth and see the dirt taken off by the application. Milk well rubbed into the wood makes a good furniture polish also keeping the shiny surface in good condition.

To purify the air of a cellar and destroy parasitical growth, some roll branstone in a pan, set fire to it, and close the doors and windows as tightly as possible for two or three hours. Repeat every three months.

Scalds or burns can be cured almost immediately by applying a poultice made of oatmeal and cold water. The cooling qualities of the meal help to draw out the fire from the burn, while its soothing properties heal it.

Kill the Cutworms

Farmers should watch for them. The following is a remedy for them:

- 100 lbs bran.
- 1 lb. Para green, dry.
- Then dampen very slightly with water. It is advisable to add molasses, or 2 or 3 lbs. of sugar.

Burnt Stubble.

Frank Connolly, of Brant, Alta. writes in the I. C. R. Bulletin as follows: "There is a difference of opinion as to whether burning stubble before plowing or grass before breaking is a benefit or a detriment to the soil."

We never advise the burning of stubble on land that is not unusually fertile. Of course, under certain circumstances, it is best to burn the stubble and get it out of the way, but when one burns a ton of straw, he is practically using $2 worth of fertilizer and this does not take into consideration the value of this straw as humus in the soil.

The best way to prepare your land would be to plow in the fall and then to harrow in the spring before using the drill, but of course as this is impossible now, the only thing you can do is to prepare your land as well as you can before sowing."

When the stubble is very heavy indicating that the land is unusually fertile, and in your particular case, it would be the best thing to burn the stubble, as it prevents the land warming up early in the spring, and it also reduces the danger due to drought. But the best way, if the stubble is not heavy, is to plow the land and follow the plow with a land facker. This will re-establish the soil capillarity; then if you form a ditch much by using a tooth plow, it will prevent the evaporation of soil moisture.

The Rural Church

Not long ago, the Standard (Chicago), devoted much space in one of its issues to the "Rural Church," and many pertinent things were said editorially, and by contributed articles. A paragraph in "The Country Church of To-day" had something to say respecting the pastor, which might be taken to heart by every minister whose pastorate is far removed from the "inaugurating crowds":

"First of all, the pastor of the country church should feel that it is well worth while to invest all that he has, and for a life-time, in just this kind of a field. We have no time just now to discuss the comparative importance of the city and the country church, but it is certain that the minister who abhors in a country community only that he may get his breath and accumulate sufficient strength to enable him to take his flight to the city will not perform the service that is needed. We sorely need men who believe in the commanding importance of Christian work in the city and country communities, and who will devote their lives to this work, unless God should call them elsewhere."

And the United States is not the only country that sorely needs that pastors in rural districts shall feel the importance of the places in which they shall live and work. Canadian towns and cities have sometimes had overwhelming attractions for rural pastors, who might better have remained contented to pursue their tasks where tumult and noise and hurry are largely unknown, and where compensations are not altogether wanting.

Dry Farming has proved a success in some sections, but in others the good old system of carrying a jug into the fields is more satisfactory.
